Structured Finance >> RMBS >> Research Highlights

The rating actions taken today reflect Fitch's analysis of expected default and loss from delinquent loans, in addition to projected losses from the currently performing pool. Fitch generates its expectations using its ResiLogic default and loss model. These expectations are adjusted based on actual performance to-date versus model projected performance. The model incorporates the impact of historical home price movements on mortgage performance, in addition to projecting further stress for many regions of the U.S. The model also reflects the demonstrated high default rates for loans that exhibit risk-layering.

The details of the application of ResiLogic to seasoned mortgage pools, and the specific assumptions used for the Alt-A review, will be described in research to be released shortly.

Fitch is completing its review of the 2005-2007 Alt-A transactions in two separate phases. The first phase will be a review of all mezzanine and subordinated bonds, which are more immediately exposed to delinquency losses. This phase is currently nearing completion. The second phase, which will begin shortly, will be a review of all the senior bonds that, in many instances, require additional cash flow analysis to evaluate the risk of the various individual classes within the senior tranche. Most notably, the use of super-senior structures will be considered in evaluating senior bonds.
